

Night is looming over Wario Island... or Dumb-Crow Isle as the island is now known as, often shortened to Dumb-Isle. Anyhow, this is Wario-Ware-Man speaking, who will be the narrator for this and newer stories. Starting with this episode every single story will be in english from the get go, as well as the first to abandon the "Character Speech Script" format that apparently wasn't very good to begin with.

Anyway, it is just another night in the house of Wario-Ware-Man and co. Inside the living room Wario is sitting on his sofa watching TV eating on a bowl of garlic while Maya is knitting on something. At first everything seems to be just normal. Outside the front of the house a shadow emerges. With the camera focused on the doorbell the hand of the unknown visitor starts ringing the bell.

Back in the living room inside the house Maya hears the sound of the doorbell. Being too busy with her knitting Maya tells Wario to go and open the door.

"No way!" said Wario. "I'm too busy watching the program on the TV and eating on my garlic. You get up and open the door."

"Seriously Wario. I'm busy with my knitting here, and I'm NOT going to put it aside right now!" Maya said and shuts off the TV with the TV remote.

"There. Now, go and get the door!" she said and resumes knitting on her little something. After some thought Wario reluctantly goes out to the main entrance to open the door, but not without uttering mean things.

"Grr... All I wanted to do tonight was sit down, eat some tasty garlic and watch something good on the TV... Next time it will be Maya who opens the door, that's for sure!!" Wario muttered to himself and opens the door to let the visitor in. Out of nowhere is Wario being kissed on the cheek by the visitor who is revealed to be a young bee girl wearing a blue non-sleeved shirt and having ice skates on her feet.

"What the...?!" was all what could come out from Wario's mouth. The young bee girl apparently isn't seeing who she's kissing, and after opening her eyes again is a bit confused to see it's not the person she thought Wario were.

"Oh my... sorry about that." said the young bee girl. "I was expecting to see Maya the Bee standing before me. Is she in this house maybe?"

Despite having asked Wario her question she gets no answer from him. By the hearts in his eyes Wario appears to have become lovestruck.

"Ahem, I said... Is Maya in here?" She asked him one more time, but once again hears no response from him. From the living room Maya hears what's going on at the main entrance. She rushes out to see who the visitor is and are overjoyed to find out it's her sister who has come for a visit.

"Ah, there you are Maya!" Maya's sister greeted her.

"Cindella!!" Maya greeted her sister back and runs over to hug her. The other Wario brothers, Wario-Ware-Man and VARIO, rushes to the main hall to see what all the fuss is about and are in for a bit of an surprise.

"Say, who's that fellow Maya's hugging?" VARIO asked Wario-Ware-Man.

"I'm not quite sure. But that girl over there I guess seems to be someone of great importance to Maya." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Oh, hi guys. You came just in time to meet my sister!" Maya greeted the other Wario bro's.

"I didn't know you even had a sister! ... so, what's your name?" Wario-Ware-Man asked Maya's sister.

"My name is Cinderella. That other guy behind me looks very much like you guys... are you three possibly related?" Cinderella asked him.

"Oh, him... well, that guy with... um, creepy hearts in his eyes are Warrio. I'm Wario-Ware-Man, and the guy behind me wearing black overalls, white cap and short sleeved shirt are VARIO." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"My name is spelled in all uppercase by the way, in case you don't know." VARIO said.

"Yeah yeah, we know that. But good of you none the less to mention it anyway!" said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Oh, ok! Nice to meet you guys. I must say though that your friend Warrio..." Cinderella said.

"Um, correction from my side, but we're actually brothers." Wario-Ware-Man corrected her.

"Oh, so you three are really siblings? That didn't really cross my mind until you just said that... Anyway, that Warrio fellow seems to be quite a bit... er, how should I put it... um, he really seems to be having his eyes on me. Is he like that with all people he greets by the door?" she asked him.

"Oh, don't worry about that. I'm sure it's nothing too special. Maybe he's thinking about something that really triggers his hunger. He tends to be like that sometimes." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"I on the other hand don't think that's the case..." VARIO said to himself, taking note of the hearts in Warrio's eyes.

"He he, I'm sure it could be something else though... Maybe he's in love with me?" Cinderella theorized.

"Mm... could be entirely possible..." said Wario-Ware-Man with an expression of doubt on his face.

"Anyway, why not go into the TV room and have a seat? You must be quite exhausted after all the walking, or skating of yours."

"Aw, it's fine. I'm very much fit of myself. I tend to be very active. In fact, I rarely ever sit still." Cinderella said as they all go into the TV room to talk and know each other a little more.

They keep on chatting and talking for hours, and the five of them appear to have a really good time despite the rainy weather that's just formed outside.

"So, you say you've been doing things like bungee-jumping, crossing mountain tops over a single line, and even sky diving?!" Wario-Ware-Man said to Cinderella.

"Yes. I like taking on challenges, even very risky ones. As a sidenote however, when I'm not active I tend to do gardening outside my house." said Cinderella.

"Oh yeah, that one bit..." VARIO said to himself.

"Wow. Even I wouldn't dare to do something like that! That IS very brave of you!" Wario-Ware-Man said.

"It sure is. My sister are probably more active than I could've ever been." said Maya.

"Um, sorry Warrio, but... why exactly are you having your eyes on Cinderella all the time??" VARIO said.

"Huh...? What, me? Ogling at her?? Naw, of course not! I wasn't looking at her, ever!" Warriio suddenly snapped out and denied himself having ever looked at Cinderella.

"Oh, really? I could'a sworn I saw you ogling at her... ah well, might just have been my imagination then." VARIO shrugged and goes back to listen to the discussion. Warriio then looks over to Cinderella again. The latter notices him and starts giggling a little, and gives him a small wink. It seems that even Cinderella seems to like him for more than just being a friend.

"I... I-I just can't believe it. For the first time in my entire life I'm really feeling love for something other than my own parrot! ... well, I still like my parrot no matter what, and he's the bestest bird buddy a fatso could've ever had. But still..." Warriio said to himself and keeps staring at Cinderella for the rest of the discussion.

"Are you planning on staying here for the night?" Wario-Ware-Man asked Cinderella.

"Well, I plan to stay until the next night. Next morning though I'll be going out and do my regular activities, like skating and so on." Cinderella said.

"Er, excuse me, but how can you skate around the streets with ice skates in the summer? There's not even any snow outside!" VARIO wondered.

"Um... it's something I've been learning on my own. When I was little I often had a fascination with ice skating. Where I lived however there were rarely any snow or ice, and despite common knowledge from others around me I often found myself trying to skate on dry ground. I often got laughed at for trying it, but I kept it up, and now I'm able to do ice skating on any surface, icy or not!" Cinderella said.

"Well, at least all that practice of yours must've paid off in the end. Gotta say I find it a bit odd though." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Yeah, it's not everyday you see someone wearing ice skates on a hot summer or whatever." said Maya.

"Pft. Like that's the weirdest thing." said VARIO and points to the cage where Warriio's parrot now has gotten out of its cage and is now skateboarding all around the living room while balancing on his beak.

"Ook... Ha-ha-hah, you're right VARIO. Sometimes there's far stranger things going on... gotta wonder what's up with his parrot now though." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Maybe he's just growing bored or something? Even parrots can sometimes be bored of living inside a cage all day." VARIO said.

"True VARIO, true... only problem is, how else are we supposed to even keep him engaged and active? No matter what we try to do with him he just doesn't seem too interested... Maybe we oughta let him out of his cage more often every now and then so he can see more of the world." said Wario-Ware-Man and resumes talking to Cinderella again.

Next morning a lone Wario nose wearing dark glasses sings on top a sign, with his little mini-trombone in hand. He's unfortunately knocked off the sign though by one of the residents throwing a hammer at him. Inside the house of Wario-Ware-Man and co everyone's sitting in the kitchen having breakfast, with the Wario bros eating roasted garlic and Maya having fried vegetables and a glass of sweet honey.

"*Munch munch* Hey Wario-Ware-Man, the garlic tasted pretty good today!" VARIO said.

"Same here. I let the garlic remain on the frying pan for a bit longer than usual, and also using spices with more flavour to it, so that's probably why it's so tasty this time." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Also, for the longest time now, I've always heard people saying that the three of us here are nothing more but clones of Wario. How and why is that?? We haven't got much in common with that guy, have we? By that I mean in way of traits, personalities, and so on." VARIO said.

"Sigh... well, it's something that come and goes, or in our case go and almost always comes back at us. I suppose you, I, and Wario look so similar to him that it's very easy for others to mistake us for him. Or maybe some guys just likes being "Mr. Obvious" and point out we're just simple Wario clones. I'd like to tell them otherwise, but I don't care. What separates us from the greedy, yellow-clad guy is the way we are, think, and how we're deciding our actions, which maybe aren't always the best... what others think about our appearance and looks, that's their problem, not ours." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Another thing I'm now thinking of is, the four of us here; three Wario brothers and a female, human-sized cartoon bee in a blue dress wearing flat shoes on her feet living next door to each other, even though I'm now just in my morning pajamas... isn't that a little strange you think? What if someone else are thinking the exact same thought by now?" Maya said.

"Um... well, I don't think that's so strange. I've seen weirder neighbors living next to each other on my lone road trips on my old trusty Wario-bike, most of which I'd rather just wanna forget about. I'll probably talk about them later someday, but not for now." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Hm... I suppose you're right, Wario-Ware-Man. Maybe it's not as strange then." Maya said.

"Indeed... cute pajamas by the way!" Wario-Ware-Man said while pointing at the sunflower-patterned pajamas she's wearing.

"Why thank you!" Maya said as she blushed after hearing that.

"You're more than welcome." said Wario-Ware-Man.

While they all are sitting at the table, Wario is in deep thought, so deep he almost forgets to eat his breakfast. Just then Cinderella comes in to get a bottle of water from the fridge. She takes a couple clunks from the bottle and puts it back and closes the fridge. Wario watches her from his seat where he and the others are still eating. She notices him looking at her.

"Hi there Wario! You wanna go out with me?" Cinderella asked Wario.

"Hm... sure, why not! I'll come after I've finished my breakfast." Wario said.

"Ok, I'll be waiting for you outside." Cinderella said and heads out.

"Hm. Wonder what that little talk of theirs was about..." VARIO wondered to himself.

"Ah come on, I suppose it's nothing real special. Besides, I've almost finished my breakfast now. You've barely even touched yours yet." said Wario-Ware-Man.

"Well, I'm waiting for it to cool down a bit. Right now the garlic's too hot for me to chew." VARIO said.

After they finish breakfast everyone is going on with their usual routines; Wario-Ware-Man and VARIO watching TV while Maya reads on a book. Outside their house Cinderella is waiting for Wario. In just a few seconds she sees him finally arriving outside.

"Ah, there you are. I started to wonder for a moment whether you have forgot or not." Cinderella said.

"Aw, of course I wouldn't forget. So, what's the first thing we're gonna do?" Wario asked her.

"Just look down at my feet and you'll find out." Cindella replied. Warriio does as Cindella says and looks at her feet, and no sooner gets the point.

"Ah, I see. So we're gonna do rollerblades, or... or are we gonna do ice skating?!" Warriio said.

"Ice skating would be more like it... It may not look like there's any snow and ice around, but like I said yesterday I've practised this for years, so I know how to skate on ground, or on grass even." Cindella said.

"Yeah, that might be piece of cake for someone like you..." Warriio said.

"Do you know how to do it yourself?" Cindella asked him.

"Phah, of course I know how to do ice skating on dry ground. Now, only thing I wonder... have I even got any ice skates?" Warriio asked himself. He goes back into the house and down into their cellar to see if there's any spare ice-skating shoes lying around.

"Hm, there's a bunch of stuffs down here in this cellar, including fairly old boxes of ours like the stacked ones here we used during our move from Diamond City to Dumb-Isle, or Shadow Moses Island as this place was once known as. Among the junk here is even this golf-club bag of ours, with this... strange golf club that I found in some small forest years ago... but NO ice-skating shoes??" Warriio said as he keeps looking around the cellar. The only things he finds though are some normal shoes, a pair of table knives and laces.

"Aw garlic, just my luck at its worst... but wait, this gives me an idea!" Warriio said and ties the knives to the bottom of each shoe. He then puts the shoes on his feet and heads out. Back upstairs Warriio is just passing by the living room where Wario-Ware-Man and the other guys are sitting.

"What the... why in the garlic is Warriio wearing such strange shoes today??" VARIO asked, being confused at seeing Warriio's new shoes. Wario-Ware-Man, having seen it already, just shrugs his shoulders and resumes reading the newspaper.

Back outside the house Warriio then storms out, still not quite getting the hang on how to skate like Cindella does, so he's forced to try walk normally. He manages to stand upright after getting to the spot Cindella's standing at.

"You think you can do it now Warriio?" Cindella asked.

"I assure you I do! What could possibly go wrong?" Warriio said.

All ready to go, they start ice-skating together. While they're skating around the streets Warriio tries his best to impress on Cindella, but falls behind when one of his shoes gets stuck in the ground.

"Oh, just typical... I wonder how Cindella manages to do it without any problem, because whenever I try I often get my foot stuck or something..." Warriio said to himself and tries to free himself to little avail. He manages to get his foot unstuck and eventually catches up with Cindella.

"Oh, there you are. I really wondered for a while there where you went off to." she said.

"Well, just falling behind a little. A shoe lace or something that went loose, and so on. But you probably knew that." Warriio said.

"Alright. Mind the police officer over there in front of us Warriio." Cindella said.

"Yeah yeah." Warriio said, having his eyes rolled to the left.

Just where the police officer is standing, who happens to be a Dumb-Crow, Cinderella then skates past him, greeting him as she passes by.

"Hello there. On duty as always, I see?" she greeted him as she went past him.

"Yes madame, I sure am on duty." The Dumb-Crow police officer said. "... Gotta wonder why that girl's wearing ice-skates though. There's no snow around here."

Not too bothered about this, the police officer then takes a look to the left again, and sees Wario coming towards him at high speed with his back turned. Wario turns to face forward again only to see the police officer in front of him.

"Uh-oh!" Wario said and tries to slow down his speed, but ends bumping into the officer. Fortunately this makes Wario stop, and are now holding onto the officer's shoulders.

"Phew... that was very close!" Wario said to himself and tries his hardest not to fall, and for a moment seems to remain where he is. Unfortunately for him, at just this very moment a small Wario-nose is passing by.

"Oh no. Go away with you! Shoo, shoo!" Wario tried to shoo it away, but it just keeps walking near his feet, tickling him so much Wario eventually ends up falling on the ground, ripping up the back of the police officer's suit in the process.

"What the?! ..." was all the police officer could say.

Wario notices that the police officer's underwear is exposed, and tries to cover it by folding the suit together again. The police officer is not amused.

"He heh... *goulp...* this could end very badly for me I suppose..." Wario said to himself and closes his eyes in preparation for the beatings he'll be taking from the officer.

Somewhere else, Cinderella is just skating about at her pace. She looks past her shoulder to see Wario skating behind her holding a newspaper over his face.

"Um... Wario, why are you holding a newspaper over your face??" Cinderella asked Wario.

"Er, well... I-I just simply enjoy reading the paper from time to time. Nothing to worry about really..." Wario replied.

"Oh, ok... well, I do hope you're watching where you're skating though." Cinderella said.

"Oh, I know where I'm going. Rest assure." Wario said, still holding the paper over his face. All Cinderella can do is simply scratch her head in confusion.

Later, at a different place, Cinderella is balancing on a line in the park, with Wario standing just below, admiring Cinderella.

"Oh my garlic... She sure looks pretty nice up there, balancing on the line to get to the other end... who would've thought a guy like me would fall for a young bee girl wearing ice skates? Not me, that's for sure." Wario said to himself as he keeps staring up at Cinderella. What he doesn't notice however is that Cinderella's just lowered the other end of the stick, right where Wario is standing. The end of the stick gets stuck in the back of his overalls and Wario is immediately flung up in the air.

"Whoa, hey! Watch where you're having tha-aaaah!!!" Wario said as he is being sent away flying.

At the same time, just nearby, a pair of Woodsters are having a game of badminton. Little do they know what will soon happen to them.

"Alright, I'll be the one to serve." said one of the Woodsters.

"Duuuh... I'm more than ready! Give it your worst!!" the Woodster on the other side said.

"Ok then, here it comes!" the first Woodster said and serves the ball. They're having a very fun time, but their game is about to be interrupted soon. Out of nowhere comes Warriio flying into the net and bouncing back and forth, squishing the poor Woodsters flat. Warriio is then launched back towards the direction he first came from.

"Aw, not again!! ... as if I've already been losing my breakfast by now!" Warriio said as he keeps zipping across the air. Warriio then arrives at the place he last stood at, and lands on the ground, face down. By now Cindella's already made it to the end of the line and gets down on the ground.

"Ok Warriio. How did you find my performance?" Cindella asked as she looked to her right side, but sees Warriio in the exact same pose he were in earlier, only now with a messed up moustasche and his clothes being almost trashed.

"Oh, um... fine, just fine! Very brilliant indeed!!" Warriio said, not even having seen the rest of her performance.

"Er... would you like to have a go maybe?" she asked Warriio.

"Hm... naaw, don't think so. Trying to make it to the other end of some balancing line just isn't quite my forté, I'm afraid." Warriio declined.

Later, Warriio and Cindella are now standing on a bridge, along with Maya and Wario-Ware-Man, the latter holding a video camera. Cindella has a bungee cord strapped onto her body, standing on the plank she's going to drop down from.

"Have the camera ready Wario-Ware-Man, Cindella's about to jump!" Maya said.

"I'm filming the whole thing!" Wario-Ware-Man said. Cindella then jumps down, and keeps falling. Warriio almost drops his jaw to the ground as he's watching Cindella from above.

"My garlic! ... this is something even I wouldn't dare to do!" Warriio said to himself. Cindella then comes back up again, landing on the plank again.

"Wow Cindella! Well done, well done!!" Maya applauded her sister.

"Thank you sis!" Cindella replied. "Would you try out bungee-jumping as well Warriio?" Cindella asked Warriio. Warriio gulped as he heard those words.

"Oh noo... this could very well spell my death if things go wrong." Warriio thought to himself. Having no choice, Warriio straps on the bungee cord and steps onto the diving plank. He looks down to where the ground is and starts feeling a bit scared.

"Jump Warriio! As long as you've got the bungee cord strapped on you'll be fine. Trust me!" Maya encouraged him. To his dismay a tiny bit of rock is located right on the spot where Warriio'll be jumping down.

"Oh, just great... I'll jump anyway, and hope I won't hit that rock!" Warriio said and jumps off the plank.

Warrío falls down as he keeps his eyes closed, hoping he'll never hit the rock below him. Warrío's lucky though, because he stops just above the rock.

"Did I hit it...?" Warrío said and opens his eyes again. "Hah, I didn't smash my face against this puny little rock! Looks like you won't be getting the better of me, mr. Stony-thingy!"

Warrío is feeling relieved for a moment. However, the belts on his overalls start coming off, making the overalls fly back up without him, and Warrío ends up hitting the rock anyway. The overalls fly back up, right into the face of Wario-Ware-Man, who is still filming the whole thing.

"But hey, who turned off the lights??!" Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Ooh...?" was all Cindella could say after seeing the overalls covering Wario-Ware-Man's face. "I wonder what happened to your brother..."

Cindella takes the camera off the hands from Wario-Ware-Man, and looks down with it to see how Warrío's doing below the bridge. From the camera's viewpoint an embarrassed Warrío is being filmed while having his underwear exposed.

"Ah crap, not the best situation to be in I suppose..." Warrío said and quickly runs off to the right, with the camera panning over to him again showing Warrío holding a wooden sign over his lower body, hiding his undergarments. Up on the bridge, all Wario-Ware-Man can do is chuckle at the sight.

"... I personally don't find this sight funny at all..." Cindella said.

"Well, sorry 'bout that. But this is really something one doesn't see everyday, and... anyhow, at least I find it somewhat funny, and that's what counts for me." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Whatever. I was just stating my opinion..." Cindella said.

Later when night finally arrives, Maya and the Wario bros are now sitting in the living room watching the video that was filmed earlier. VARIO just laughs at the scene with Warrío in only his underwear.

"Ha ha ha!... That is probably the best thing you guys ever captured on the video tape!!" VARIO said while bursting out in laughter.

"Aw come on. That's not even funny!!" Warrío said while having his arms crossed, with bandage wrapped around the top of his head.

"You may not find it funny, but I do!" VARIO said and reverses the tape to re-watch the scene where Warrío's overalls fly right into the face of Wario-Ware-Man. At this very night however Cindella will be heading back home, having her hand bag packed and ready.

"Alright guys, I'm heading home now!" Cindella said as she waves at them. Maya gets up and runs towards Cindella to hug her, with Cindella doing the same.

"Aaw, I so hope we'll be seeing each other again in the future! Be careful out there with all your activities." Maya told her.

"I will be careful Maya." Cindella said and pauses for a brief moment. "Warrío, I'd like to give something to you!"

Cindella heads over to where Warrío's sitting and kisses him on the cheek. She gives him a note and heads out to the front door where Maya and Cindella wave each other goodbye.

"Bye Cindella. May we meet again sometime!" Maya said.

"I'll try my best to call you. If I don't, maybe you'll see me popping up again at some point somewhere." Cindella said and starts heading off, with Maya closing the door.

"I can't believe she's already going back home. Makes me wish her visits lasted longer... anyhow, knowing her well, I think she will return again." Maya said and goes back into the living room. On the sofa Warrio is now looking at the note Cindella gave him, with trying to peek from time to time.

"I... I just can't believe it... Guys, Cindella gave me her phone number! Wahoo!!" Warrio shouted out in excitement. Wario-Ware-Man and VARIO just watch him as he just said that, completely dumbfounded.

"Now that's something even I didn't expect to happen tonight!" Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Yep. I'm a little confused though... why is Warrio suddenly in love with some kind of girl, or is he??" asked VARIO.

"Your guess is just as good as mine VARIO." Wario-Ware-Man replied.

"I'm not minding it though. After all, at some point even someone like Warrio would eventually be bound to find his dream girl in life, and that girl happened to be my sister." Maya said.

"Yeah, I suppose you're right there. Still though... I'm feeling a bit uneasy over this. For years we've never once considered having any girlfriends or such, and... um... ah well, suppose things always changes with time, and change is often unavoidable... anyhow, who knows where this is going to head at... Maybe Warrio and Cindella'll get married? Maybe they'll have children? Or even neither of it, and they remain together anyway??" Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Yeah... who really knows where things will be taking off for Warrio from here..." VARIO said to himself, still unable to get it into his mind that Warrio's now dating a young bee girl.

Indeed, Warrio seems to finally have found his biggest love in life alongside his own parrot. How will this new relationship between Warrio and Cindella play out like? Would it be lasting for a fairly long time? That's something only time, or future stories can tell...

The End...