Series 3, Episode 7(25): Welcome to Paris!

It's quite a lovely, sunny day in Paris. Wario-Ware-Man and co, along with Calimero and his friends, have traveled there to attend a musical performance. They all have got their tickets, and are ready and set to go to the place where the musical is being held.

"It's gonna be pretty interesting to attend that musical today," Calimero said.

"Yeah. Me also thinks it's going to be a exciting experience." Priscilla said.

"We gotta wait for VARIO first though, because he's gone off to buy himself some snacks." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Hm. Let's hope he does come back though, because he's promised to rejoin us as soon as he's done." Wario said.

"I highly doubt he'll ever keep his promise..." Piero said. Everyone else seems to agree with him on that.

"Aw come on. He's just getting some quick snacks for himself. I think he'll be back pretty soon." Wario-Ware-Man said. After about half an hour though VARIO's still not showing up.

"See. I told ya that guy won't be coming back." Piero said.

"Must be late or something... let's wait for a little while longer and see if he turns up any time soon." Wario-Ware-Man said.

Meanwhile, VARIO is still in the small store looking for the things he so wants to get.

"Let's see. The few things I wanna buy are; Garlic chips, garlic nuts, and a bottle of juice. No matter where I look though I still can't seem to find what I'm looking for." VARIO said and keeps looking around the store. He eventually finds the stuff he's looking for and goes to the cashier to pay his things.

When VARIO finally arrives at the place he was supposed to meet up with his friends he finds that they're not there any longer.

"Hm, strange. Wasn't we supposed to meet here? ... suppose they must've gone off somewhere else for some time..." VARIO said and goes off to enjoy some sightseeing. He starts by taking pictures with his camera of anything he sees. He then sees something in front of him that really catches his attention; the Eiffel Tower.

"My garlic. That sure is a very tall tower!!" VARIO said and starts taking pictures of it. He doesn't see where he's going though and ends up bumping into a police officer. In response the officer starts blowing his whistle.

"Er... look, I'm only here on a sightseeing trip, not on a police officer mucking trip! Have a nice day. I'm sure I do anyway." VARIO said and walks off. The police officer just scoffs at him and resumes patrolling around the area.

"Hm, have to remember to buy myself a ticket for the musical. Without any ticket, you can't enter." VARIO said and goes to a nearby ticket shop to get one. Still wanting to go up the eiffel tower, VARIO pays 1 euro for a ticket up the stairs. He soon see however that the stairs will take him forever to climb.

"NO WAY I'm going up those stairs! I'd be tired by the time I even get up there." VARIO said and thinks.

Thinking he's being smart, VARIO sneaks his way to the lift. However, a police officer has just spotted him and blows his whistle right behind his back.

"Pay up if you wanna use the lift!!" the police officer said.

"Sigh... Well, hey there fella! Out sightseeing here as well I see!" VARIO tried to fool around with the officer. The police officer is not amused though. A punch is then heard offscreen.

Back on screen again, VARIO is now paying the police officer all the money he has, which seems to be just enough in order to make use of the lift.

"Here ya go. That's all I have..." VARIO said.

"Thank you. You may now use the lift." the police officer said. VARIO then enters the lift.

Inside the lift, after it has gone a fairly long way up, VARIO starts sticking out his tongue at the police officer standing on the ground way below. He doesn't realize that another police officer is standing just behind him.

"Aw crap. Just when I thought the coast was clear..." VARIO said. Outside the lift a lot of beating up is being heard.

When the lift stops at the spot where visitors can gaze out at the horizon, VARIO starts walking out of the lift. Because he has had his cap dragged down his eyes he can't see anything. The moment he pulls up his cap is when he bumps his face into one of the binocular lenses used for looking out at distant things more close up.

"Huh? Wow, what a view!" VARIO said and looks out to the horizon. He then takes out his music ticket.

"Despite all the mishaps I've been through today, I'm fairly sure that from here on all will be going fine for me!" VARIO promised himself. However, a strong gust of wind blows the ticket out of his fingers.

"Hey, come back here!!" VARIO said and starts chasing after ticket.

VARIO keeps chasing the ticket, which is now flying all around the tower.

"Come back I said! Come back!! I need you to enter the musical!" VARIO said while chasing the ticket.

After a bit of chasing around VARIO reaches the top spire of the tower. VARIO tries to get a better look at his surroundings, but the lenses suddenly go blank.

"Ops. Can't see anything now... guess I need to pay up." VARIO said and pulls out a coin and puts it into the lenses' coin slot. The lenses then reopens again.

"Ok, I can see it's quite a high way up, but I'm still not sure where I am!" VARIO said and takes the binocular lenses off his eyes. At this point he sees his ticket fly in front of his eyes.

"Ha, Gotcha!" VARIO said after catching the ticket. He then looks down to find that he's now hanging onto the tower's spire, high in the air.

"Yaaah!!" VARIO screamed, scared stiff over the height level. It doesn't take long for the spire to snap, with VARIO falling down from the tower.

"AAAH!!" screamed VARIO as he falls down to his doom.

Down on the ground, the police officer is standing at an ice cream cart, wanting to have some ice cream.

"An ice cream please." the police officer asked the ice cream Woodster. After getting his ice cream the police officer is about to eat it, only to be knocked out by the spire falling on him. VARIO then lands on and bounces off the canopy on the cart. At the same time, Calimero and friends are on their way towards the musical.

"I really wonder where VARIO has gone off to..." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"So do I..." Calimero said.

Just then VARIO flies past them from way above. They stop to listen where the voice came from.

"Did you guys hear anything?" Calimero said.

"Nope. I didn't hear anything." Valeriano shrugged his shoulders.

Elsewhere, VARIO has now landed on top of a passenger train. At this point he's just dropped his ticket, which has now gotten inside the train by flying into one of the windows standing a bit open.

"Oh no..." VARIO said and tries to open the window where the ticket went into. Unable to pull the window down, VARIO resorts to try open one of the train doors. It opens, but just as VARIO's about to get in the doors quickly shut, trapping him halfway through.

"H-hey! Open up! Let me in!!" VARIO complained. He tries to open the doors again, but is unable to. He's then interrupted by yet another police officer.

"Ok, how in the garlic can a police officer get from one place to another so fast??" VARIO asked himself.

"Don't ask me. I don't know either." the police officer said. Looking to his side, VARIO spots an emergency switch.

"Hm... maybe I'll try that!" VARIO said and pulls down the switch. However, as this makes the train stop, and because the train driver hasn't yet made the turn, the train falls off the track and barges into a store building while it's still high in the air.

"But hey, those are some nice stores down there!" VARIO said as he takes notice of the stores below him.

"Hello, let me of here! I wanna go shopping!!" VARIO said and pulls up his VISA card, wanting to go shopping.

He's not getting the chance though, because the train soon goes through the other side of the building. The train keeps on going, wrecking things here and there. It then goes dives into the river.

"Man, those Wario-nose fishes sure ain't getting any food down here!" VARIO said as he sees the skeletal Wario-nose fishes swimming by.

The train eventually stops after barging into a cathedral. The doors that VARIO's been stuck at finally opens again.

"Phew. At long last." VARIO said. The ticket that VARIO's been chasing is now on the loose again, flying upwards.

"Ooh. You come here now!" VARIO said and starts chasing the ticket again.

VARIO keeps climbing the stairs to try and catch up to the ticket. While running up the stairs he takes the time to admire the architecture of the building.

"My garlic. Sure must have been a lot of work going into building this kind of thing..." VARIO said.

At the top of the stairs, the ticket flies out of the exit. VARIO chases it outside, and catches it.

"Ha. Now you're mine again!" VARIO said. He doesn't realize that the stairs has already ended, and lands on some Wario-nose sculpture built into the building. Still holding the ticket in his hand, VARIO thinks it's finally over.

"Hah! At least I still got the ticket." VARIO said in triumph. Unfortunately the statue can't support his weight and breaks, causing VARIO to drop his ticket and fall down yet again.

Down outside the cathedral's entrance, one of the visitors tries to describe in front of the police officer about the sight he just saw. Hearing something falling, the officer switches place with the visitor. The Wario-nose sculpture falls on the visitor to the police officer's delight.

"Duu-ha! Not this time!" The police officer exclaimed. To his annoyance though VARIO falls on top of his head.

"Grr, you again!" the police officer said.

"He he... hello there. Nice weather today, right?" VARIO said jokingly.

Later, VARIO is now sitting in a prison cell watching the musical from a small TV hanging on the wall.

"Heh. Who needs to go to the musical when you can just watch it via the TV." VARIO said, seemingly not too unhappy about not being able to go to the musical.

Down at the musical, Calimero and friends are now sitting there watching the performance.

"You were right Calimero. The musical is indeed quite entertaining!" Priscilla told him.

"Well, we knew it from the start that it would be a good experience. What we didn't know was that the musical really was gonna be THIS good." Valeriano said.

"Indeed. Shame that VARIO couldn't come though." Wario said.

"Yeah. In fact, I still wonder where he could be..." Wario-Ware-Man wondered. Just then his cellphone rings. He answers the phone.

"Yeah, Wario-Ware-Man! ... What? ... you're kidding me?! ... Aha? ... Oh, I see... Alright, I'll be there in a moment." Wario-Ware-Man said and puts his phone down.

"Who was it?" Wario asked.

"It was the police. VARIO's been locked up for having annoyed a police officer." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"What a silly reason to lock someone up like that!" Wario said.

"I know, but apparently it has happened anyway." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"What are you guys talking about?" Priscilla asked.

"VARIO's been put in jail for... some pretty silly reason." Warriio said.

"Yeah. VARIO's been asking the police to release him now, but until they do me and Warriio have to go to the police station and try sort things out." Wario-Ware-Man said.

"What!!" Calimero and friends gasped.

"I'm not kidding. VARIO's litteraly in jail. On the other hand, I kinda expected something like this to happen at some point, because knowing VARIO, he often tends to get himself into trouble from time to time... Come on Warriio, time to go to the police!" Wario-Ware-Man said.

"Coming Wario-Ware-Man!" Warriio said.

"I think we should follow along as well." Calimero said.

"But what about the musical?" Valeriano asked.

"Never mind it. We can always watch it on TV later. Come on guys, let's go." Calimero said and leaves the building, with the others following along.

The End...
